Program Overview

Where can Competitive Systems and Practices be applied?

Competitive Systems and Practices training establishes Lean Manufacturing principles to a range of industries including financial services, healthcare, warehousing, distribution as well as manufacturing. The Competitive Systems and Practices program has been developed to better cater for a broader range of industries, while supporting key functions like operations, administration, sales, logistics and technical departments.

What's in this program for management?

All strategies rely on successful execution to succeed. Management's best efforts and plans require effective implementation by a motivated and informed team. This program gives management the vital resource of a skilled team focussed on producing results that are aligned with your Business Strategies and Objectives.

What's in this program for staff?

Everyone wants to perform at their best and be recognised for it. This program will develop trainees' capabilities to perform their tasks more efficiently. Trainees will gain maximum job satisfaction by seeing and understanding how their role fits into the overall process. Successful trainees gain a qualification for Certificate III or Certificate IV in Competitive Systems and Practices. This is recognised throughout Australia and New Zealand which lifts their value to the business, industry and community.

Where can this lead to?

Training doesn't have to stop at the Certificate III and IV, with Corporate Partners also offering a Diploma in Competitive Systems and Practices as a pathway to continued development of key staff.

Corporate Partners' experience and expertise embeds operational excellence as second nature in your team.

- Corporate Partners is a Registered Training Organisation delivering the Competitive Systems and Practices Training program, nationally. Corporate Partners is an approved delegate of the Australian Skills Quality Authority. Delegation information can be found on the ASQA website - www.asqa.gov.au/vet-registration/delegations.
- Corporate Partners expertise in the theory and experience in practical workplace application of Competitive Systems and Practices has led them to develop a unique holistic training process. This ensures staff are trained in skills to help them work more effectively in their own environment as well as within a team.
- Our learning model focuses on critical business issues concurrently rather than sequentially, resulting in sustainable learning which they can repeat and apply over and over again.
- As trainees successfully achieve Corporate Partners certification, they achieve a complete understanding of business objectives combined with excellence in detailed operating disciplines.

How and where to achieve excellence?

Participants in Competitive Systems and Practices training are required to complete 10 units for Certificate III and 12 units for Certificate IV, with the final selection of units tailored to client's specific business needs.

Funding

Corporate Partners can assist companies to make an application for State and Federal training funding incentives which companies may be eligible for.

Additionally the Federal Government may at times have support programs available that companies/trainees or Corporate Partners may be able to make an application for.

NOTE: Not all States offer the same funding programs and companies are advised to check with the relevant Australian Apprenticeship Centres and Corporate Partners to obtain clarification.

Excellence Right Across Australia

Corporate Partners has a team of qualified consultants in all state capitals across Australia which gives consistency of training, understanding and operational excellence across all your sites.

Learner Skills Program

Typically the implementation work will be undertaken through a series of projects, providing the opportunity to address a specific issue or area and achieve defined outcomes. Corporate Partners programs are delivered through structured on-the-job learning, workshops and include one-to-one guidance and coaching for clients when required.

Training and Assessment are conducted with the Learners in a client company workplace, on the job, utilising the company's facilities, with a Corporate Partners Trainer and Assessor. This program is ideal for skills development and demonstrating competency so any skills programs should incorporate or be embedded within real work activities.

MSS30316 Certificate III Competitive Systems and Practices is typically 12-15 months to complete and the MSS40316 Certificate IV Competitive Systems and Practices is typically 15-18 months to complete. This time will vary due to learners taking leave, holidays or other leave during the program.
